Love your local farmers' markets!

Days are short and darkness has arrived. We are finally putting on socks and pulling on sweaters, which is pretty much the extent of our winter wardrobe planning here in the Monterey Bay area. Our ovens are getting more use and heating our homes with cozy smells, and we are probably doing more baked goods recipe searches than one might like to admit. But if you are sad to see the golden heat of our autumn season fade away, winter celebrations provide opportunities to embrace the cold, gather with friends and cook our way into spring with the abundance of locally grown produce still at our fingertips every day of the week.
